KEEP CALM AND DECLARE COMPLIANCE LITIGATION
Emory’s Department of Comparative Literature

JOHN JOHNSTON,
Chair

&

MUNIA BHAUMIK,
Director of Undergraduate Studies
Comparative Literature (commonly abbreviated as “Comp. Lit.”) offers students the opportunity to pursue their love of literature beyond national and disciplinary boundaries. It situates the study of literature in a 21st century global context that takes account of cultural and linguistic diversity as well as changing technologies and new media. Majors study literary texts in at least one language other than English, delving into works from the ancient as well as the modern world, and exploring cultural productions from non-Western traditions as well as the so-called “great books” of the West. Students study literature’s intersections with... other media and disciplines such as philosophy, religion, history, law, film studies, and psychoanalysis, and take courses in areas as varied as Exemplary Novels, French poetry, Russian Film, Literature & Justice, Postcolonial Popular Culture, Disaster Literature or Latin American Magical Realism. Comp. Lit. students also explore important theoretical questions: How do we define the human? How does language function in society? What is the relationship between ethics and religion? How do new technologies require us to rethink social, political, and ethical issues? How do we understand the relationship between history (events that happened) and memory (how we remember those events)?
The program encourages interaction between graduate & undergraduate students through undergraduate courses & annual colloquia. The Department of Comparative Literature is also pleased to offer its undergraduates regular opportunities for both intellectual & social gatherings & discussion. The Café Chocolat events provide a relaxed atmosphere for a healthy blend of intellectual discussion, friendly conversation, & chocolate with your peers. The Theory Reading Group presents an opportunity to deepen student exposure to an understanding of theoretical and philosophical texts while sharing an experience of reading with fellow literary-minded students.
